

Vincent Lynch shares his story about how his local company Donseed can save builders millions?

The Young Entrepreneur Programme (YEP) 2008/9 kicked off on 26 September with the Blue Sky Day featuring an impressive list of guest speakers including; Digicel CEO, Denis O'Brien, O'Brien's Sandwich Bars Founder, Brody Sweeney; Managing Director MB Funds, Lehman Brothers, Michael Brewster; teenage millionaires and Automatic founders, Patrick and John Collison; Dragon's Den stars and founders of ifoods.tv Niall Harbison and Sean Fee and local Donseed CEO, Vincent Lynch.

The Young Entrepreneur Programme is a not-for-profit organisation dedicated to illustrating the validity of entrepreneurship as a career choice. It's mission is to help identify, inform, recognise and celebrate Kerry's next generation of business leaders - and their educators.

Pic : George Doyle

Vincent Lynch (Donseed), Caroline McEnery (Garvey Group) & David Walsh (Netwatch).

Speaking at the event Donseed CEO Vincent Lynch shared how he and his team turned a simple concept into an enterprise that could save builders from financial disaster. Donseed Ltd was established by construction industry specialists to deliver a range of cost savings and control needs to the construction industry. Donseed is supporting it's customers in delivering construction projects safely, on budget and on time.

For more information see www.donseed.com